She's not a girl who misses much do do do do do do do do Dmi                                                                        Ami
she's well acquainted with the touch of the velvet hand like a lizard on a window pane Dmi                                        Ami
the man in the crowd with the multicoloured mirrors on his hobnail boots
lying with his eyes while his hands are busy working overtime
a soap impression of his wife which he ate and donated to the National trust.
